Nearly six hours were consumed, with about an hour's intermission for supper, in casting eleven fruitless ballots for a e served in the away of the served in the away of the served for the served of the served by the Board of City Commissioners.

When adjournment was had there were 11 candidates in the field, with votes ranging from 13 to 72, the highest being a loon way off from the 218 necessary to elect. The determined battle arose from the fact that the nominee is sure to be elected to serve 20 years. The fight appeared to have narrowed down to Judge Kennedy of Allegheny and Judge Yerkes of Bucks. Each is on the bench in his respective county. It was believed that one of these gentlemen would be nominated in short order to day, although the western friends of Judge Krebs of Clearfield refused to concede the defeat of their candidate. Ex-Congressman Wolverton, who was considered a strong candidate, lost steadily in the last few ballots, as did

Judges Bechtel, Allen and Albright. With the supreme court judgeship out of the way, the remainder of the convention's work will probably be disposed of by acclamation.

Although the heat of the convention hall was intense, the delegates stuck to their work heroically and best of order and good feeling prevailed.

The convention was called to order at 12:10 p. m. by State Chairman Rilling. Temporary Chairman William M. Brin-ton of Lancaster made a brief speech, congratulating the Democracy on its fight in 1896 and 1898. His mention of the name of William J. Bryan as the great leader of the Democracy was received with wildest applause. After the announcement of the committees on organization, resolutions and credentials the convention took a recess until 3 o'clock.
